MISS CRENSHAW AND MR. PHELPS MARRIED.

Young Bride Extensively Entertained--Bridal Couple Receive Several Hundred Presents--Will Live Here.

WEDDING TRIP TO ASHEVILLE.

(Woodford Sun)

The marriage of Miss Anne Scott Crenshaw and Mr. David Brainerd Phelps, of Cloverport, while simple in arrangements, was a beautiful event yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Christian church. The decorations were unusually pretty. Palms, ferns and yellow chrysanthemums formed the background, and on either side of the altar were festoons of ivy and clusters of autumn leaves, the vivid scarlet and yellow predominating, producing a brilliant effect.

Mrs. George Minary presided at the organ. After the arrival of the guests, Miss Alice Field sang with much sweetness, "Behold, it is Morn," Prof. L. P. Wheeler playing the accompaniment. Lohmeyer's march accompanied the bridal party, which entered from either side of the church. The ushers were Messrs. Wiley McFerris, of Georgetown; Willard Shrewsbury, of Louisville; Hugh Hunter, of Panama, and James Cary, who were followed by the attentive little flower girls, Blanche Hunter and Elizabeth Bowman, of Fayette county, wearing dainty lingerie gowns, with pink ribbons and sashes, and carrying pink chrysanthemums.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Dr. J. W. Crenshaw. The bridegroom was attended by his best man, Mr. Robert Salisbury, of Chicago. The Rev. R. J. Bamber performed the ceremony, using the ring service.

The bride wore a stylish gown of grey broadcloth, entrained, elaborately trimmed in silver embroidery, with a touch of rare lace and silver net about the neck and sleeves. Her hat was grey, with coral wings, and she carried an armful of white chrysanthemums.

Preceded by the flower girls, the happy couple left the church and drove to the home of the bride. After congratulations and farewells they left for Lexington, where they took the Q & C train for a week's stay at Asheville, N. C.

The popularity of the bride was shown in the handsome gifts she received, numbering several hundred.

Mrs. Phelps was extensively entertained the week before her wedding. "Beautiful and elaborate parties were given her," says the Woodford Sun. She was guest of honor of the Chi Epsilon Chi at the Chapter house in Lexington at a beautiful dinner. Twenty guests were present and toasts were given by Miss Sweeney and Miss Leigh.

TO LOUISVILLE

Mayor Harris and Family Moved--Miss Harris' Departure Regretted by Cloverport Young Folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris and family left Friday for Louisville to make their home. They will live at Brook and St. Catharine.

Mr. Harris, up until yesterday, was Mayor of Cloverport, and was a most prominent citizen. A number of years he held a position at the L. & H. & St. L. shop, and is owner of the rock crusher at Webster.

Mrs. Harris and her lovely daughter, Miss Jennie Mabel, will indeed be missed by the Cloverport people. Mrs. Harris was so hospitable with her home and the young people have had many good times there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris' sons, Edward and Russell, will live with them in Louisville where they will enter business.

Moving Furnishings

Dr. Boone and his mother, Mrs. Hayes are busy this week moving their furnishings in the Harris property which they have just recently bought. Their furniture arrived from Hodgenville Friday. The residents in St. Rose Court are delighted to have Dr. Boone and Mrs. Hayes for neighbors.

ANNUAL RECEPTION A DANDY.

Cloverport Young People Have a Great Time at Epworth League Halloween Entertainment Thursday Night.

REV. DILLON APPROVES.

Unique and original was the annual reception given in the parlors of the Methodist church Thursday night in celebration of Halloween. One hundred guests or more were present; seventy-five persons represented animals.

The costumes were grotesque, funny and unusual. One that attracted particular attention was worn by Mr. Harry Newsum, who was masked as a frog. His costume was green and white. Those who did not see him, cannot imagine how wonderfully he imitated Mr. Frog.

Mr. Lafe Behn and Dr. Boone, created much laughter and guessing by their make-up. Mr. Behn represented an old woman with a lion face, and Dr. Boone was daintily dressed as a young girl. Mr. Otto Falson made fun for all. He looked exactly like a monkey.

There were pigs, dogs, cats, cows, lions, rats, all sorts and sizes were in the menagerie. Mr. John Babbage wants to know who were the two pigs that caught him by his ears and marched him down the street. The guessing contest, managed by Mr. Denton, revealed the identity of the masked. The excitement it caused was intense.

The Fortune Hunt was entertaining too. Refreshments were served, and after congratulations were extended to the League Social Committee, the guests departed for their homes.

The committee extends thanks for the great assistance given them by the following: Mrs. Ira Behn, Mrs. Allen Kingsbury, Mrs. Rowland, Mrs. Hoffman Behn, Mrs. Byrne Severs, Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Stader, Dr. Simmons, Lawrence and Harold Murray, Stuart Babbage, Chas. Fallon and Mrs. Ross.

This was the first social the new minister had attended here, and several of the Leaguers had been told that he would not approve of such entertainments for the benefit of the church. However, before the social was given, the committee consulted Rev. Dillon in regard to the matter. He said it was all right, "to go ahead," and Thursday night when he said goodbye, he and Mrs. Dillon were both charmed with the good behavior and the innocent pleasure of the young people.

Making Money On the Farm

XVIII.—The Vegetable Garden

By C. W. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Culture in Modern Agriculture"

Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association.

A GOOD vegetable garden will produce at least half of the family's living during the summer months, to say nothing of the vegetables that may be caused or stored in the cellar for winter use. Many farmers object to a garden as causing too much work. That is largely because they make it so. The largest item of work is hoeing, and if the garden is properly planned and managed little of that will need to be done. The mistake most often made is in the location of the garden. It is put in a little corner back of the house where there is no room to use horse tools. It is much better to plant a few fruit trees in such a space and locate the garden some place where it can be worked by horsepower.

Securing Early Vegetables.

A south slope is best if early vegetables are wanted. A sandy soil is also a big help in getting things started early, but almost any soil may be made to give good results by draining and manuring. Fall plowing is a necessary step in getting the garden planted early. Then as soon as it is dry enough to work in the spring it should be disked and harrowed until the best possible seed bed is produced. Earliness is a prime essential in a vegetable garden. One of the main satisfactions in having a garden is in being able to grow a more plentiful crop of watermelon to the neighbors before they have any of their own. Then, the season they may be transferred, box and all, into the garden bed and suffer no loss.

During cold nights the hotbed should be covered with straw or old carpets to keep it from getting too cold inside. On sunny days the sash may have to be raised during the forenoon to let the day give ventilation. The plants should be watered in the morning on warm days only to prevent too great a reduction of moisture.

A cold frame is almost as necessary as a hotbed. The plants raised in a hotbed are very tender and are liable to be injured if taken directly to the garden. The cold frame is made the same as a hotbed except that no manure is used. After the plants have obtained a good start in the cold frame they should be transferred to the cold frame. The plants in the cold frame are gradually accustomed to the outside air by leaving the sash up for longer periods each day. This transplanting also helps the tomatoes and cabbages in another way. In that it makes them thicker skinned and causes a better root development. A stock plant of this kind is always a better grower and yielder.

Early Potatoes.

A good way to secure earliness in the case of potatoes is to back a number in sand somewhere where they will get plenty of light. This should be done a week or so before planting the regular crop. These tubers are set out carefully so as not to break off the sprouts which have started. A week or more in the sand will start the plants in this way. The early potatoes may be planted rather shallow and a thick coating of straw placed between the rows. No manure should be used in this way. When digging time comes the straw can be thrown back and the potatoes will be found on top of the ground, or near the surface. Of course this plan is not practicable except for a few rows of the earliest potatoes.

Rhubarb and Asparagus.

Another method of securing early vegetables is by the use of perennials, or those which come from the roots in each year. The most important of these are asparagus and rhubarb. Asparagus is one of the most delicious vegetables that can be grown, and it fits in a space in the spring when there is nothing else available. Rhubarb comes nearer to being a fruit, making nothing of it. In starting an asparagus bed the land should be manured heavily and plowed deeply. One year old plants grown from roots should be planted in rows three feet apart. The early spring treatment of the asparagus bed consists in giving it a topdressing of manure. After the cutting season is over a liberal coating of manure should be scattered between the rows. The stalks should be cut in the fall before the berries are fully ripe to keep the bed from becoming filled with seedlings. Asparagus cannot be cut much before it is three years old. Rhubarb is easily grown from roots planted around in any out of the way corner and kept well mulched and manured.

Cultivation.

The garden should be laid out in long rows and as much of the cultivation as possible done with a horse cultivator. A one horse walking cultivator is best for this work. A wheel hoe can be used to get the weeds out of the new plants. The garden should be kept free of weeds every few weeks in a big help in keeping weeds in check. If the garden is put on clean soil in the first place and few weeds are allowed to grow, the labor problem will be greatly simplified.

Insects.

Of all the insects that attack garden crops the one that is probably causing the most trouble is the striped cucumber beetle. A practice often followed where but a few hills of vine crops are grown to cover the young plants with a frame of mosquito netting.

Managing the Hotbed.

The proper time to start the hotbed is about six weeks before the ground can be worked for planting. About three days after the hotbed has been started the temperature will have become uniform, and the seeds can be sown. They can be sown thickly, since they are to be taken up before they have made much growth. The principal plants started in a hotbed are the tomatoes and lettuce. Lettuce and melons may also be grown in the hotbed and if planted thickly enough may be left there until they are large enough to be set out in the garden. The roots will make their way through the sides of the box, and three or four inches will be saved. This is a clever device for raising early crops of plants which do not bear transplanting. Started in this way early in

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Cloverport Will Show You How.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it. But it won't cure it. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it: Eject the cause, relieve the pain. They cure, too, so Cloverport people say.

Geo. F. Meagerle, River St., Cloverport, Ky., says: "For three months I was unable to do any work on account of my kidneys being disordered. The passages of the kidney secretions were painful and my feet became so badly swollen that I was unable to get on my shoes. There was a dull ache in the small of my back, which extended into my head and although I tried a number of different remedies, I was unable to find relief. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention and I procured a supply at Fisher's drug store. I used them according to direction and in six weeks I was entirely free from kidney trouble. I attribute my robust health today solely to the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Many sufferers from nasal catarrh say they get splendid results by using an atomizer. For their benefit we prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Except that it is liquid it is in all respects like the healing, helpful, pain-alleviating Cream Balm that the public has been familiar with for years. No cocaine nor other dangerous drug in it. The soothing spray is a remedy that relieves at once. All druggists, 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Panama Canal Half Done.

On October 22, it was calculated that just half of the work on the Panama Canal had been completed. This work added to what the French had done since 1882, makes the canal two-thirds finished. The greater part of the remaining work is in the great Culcra Cut, where fifty steam shovels and fifty trains are at work.

HALLOWEEN

Celebrated by Bad Boys--They

Make Several Changes

Around Town

The mischievous boys of Cloverport had fun Saturday night when they celebrated Halloween instead of Sunday night. They must have been pretty good fellows, after all, for they remembered the Sabbath and did not make any disturbances that night notwithstanding it was Halloween.

They changed several signs around considerably, moved everything they could on Main street. About the best piece of work they did was putting a buggy upon the roof of the English Kitchen. They made both Uncle Barney
Bohler and Mr. Dugan have night-mares.

"That's another one!"

"Oh, you never said so in so many words, but I saw it for four years around the house. I saw you sitting and moping because you didn't have enough to live on. Then there were that mother of yours and your sister—they never stopped. You tried to make yourself a martyr. Every moment of your life was a mute protest against your poverty—yes, it was, and you know it. Do you remember that night when you said you couldn't go to the theater because you didn't have clothes? That was the first time I took money. That's when I began."

"You knew I wouldn't have gone if I had known."

"But you did go—you kept on going, and I kept on stealing for you. God, how I've suffered for you, for the clothes on your back. Every night has been a nightmare. Now I'm going to jail, you know that. I'm going up there on the river for years because you won't do your part."

"I can't do what you want."

He became saturnally persuasive again.

"Why can't you?" he urged. "Other women have for less reason—one to get control of a transcontinental railroad for her husband. I've risked everything for you. If you go there tonight I won't go to jail; I won't be hauled into court; no one will know but the three of us. No one will think the less of you. I've gone through to the limit for you; it's up to you to go through for me."

"Then if you go to jail you mean that I've sent you there?"

"Yes, and down in your heart you know you have."

Every instinct of her pure womanhood, every fiber of her flesh, revolted at this cruel exhibition of his villainy. She contemplated him with loathing.

"Now that I see you naked in all your nasty meanness, your contemptible villainy, I wonder how I ever made the mistake of thinking you even half a man," she said.

This scathing denunciation made no impression on his deadened sense of honor and decency.

"You can't dodge the responsibility with these speeches," he replied, shrugging his shoulders. "I've gone good for you. What are you going to do? Be square with me and take this chance—an easy chance—and you know you're safe."

She did not answer, but stood there, her face set in its expression of abhorrence and indignation, deliberating as to the best course to pursue toward this unrepentant villain to whom she was bound and who watched her with anxious, cowering eyes.

She addressed him finally in cold, harsh tones:

"Whatever I may do or promise to do, I promise myself because you blame me."

"Emma, I knew you'd—"

"Don't make the mistake that I care for you. Whatever I felt for you, and thought it was love, you've ruined."

"You can't dodge the responsibility with these speeches," he replied, shrugging his shoulders. "I've gone good for you. What are you going to do? Be square with me and take this chance—an easy chance—and you know you're safe."

WHAT ONE COMMUNITY DID.

Result of Road Dragging by the Farmers at Cameron, Mo.

In view of the general awakening for good roads I will tell the farmers who are interested of the wonderful improvement that has been brought about in dirt roads by persistent use of the road drag. In 1902 the writer conceived the idea that the farmers in the vicinity of Cameron, Mo., should have the benefit of rural free delivery. The idea was ridiculed, but persistence won. The first carrier that left the Cameron postoffice was accompanied by a brass band over the entire route, and every farmer that had prepared his mail box for the free delivery was "serenaded." This created an interest. But our roads were in a miserable condition, full of mudholes and deep ruts.

At the suggestion of Postmaster F. L. we held a "good roads" picnic in Cameron for the purpose of emphasizing the necessity of good roads in order to secure the rural free delivery. The meeting was addressed by D. Ward King, the "evangel of good roads in Missouri," who explained the value of the King drag, and other speakers. Of the thousands who attended the picnic many pledged themselves to a constant use of the drag as a result of having in mind mudholes and ruts well rounded, level, solid roads in all this vicinity. We have eight rural carriers out of Cameron, and the use of the King drag, and since that event land values have more than doubled in this locality. Now even the farmers have the spirit of the good roads movement, and there is no doubt that the voluntary dragging of the roads will be kept up—James Williams in Kansas City Star.

ROCK ROADS AND FARMS.

Missouri Farmer Tells of the Advantages of Macadam Highways.

Elmer Carol, who owns farms in Jackson and Clay counties, Mo., is very much in favor of rock roads. He lives three miles west of Blue Springs, Mo., and in a recent interview says it is hard to estimate their value to farmers.

"If I were going to buy another farm in Clay county I would pay $25 an acre more for the same land on a rock road than away from that kind of a road," Mr. Carol said. "If Clay county farmers once lived on a rock road and rode it, they would know they would not hesitate to pay $10 an acre for the improvement. Over in Jackson county we can haul big loads of material at the same price as in this county. The highest and when we could not get there at all on dirt roads. It is a great satisfaction and a plus one, too, to know that we can get over the roads well at any time we may desire to go. When the Clay county farmers get rock roads their only regret will be that they didn't get them sooner."

Mr. Carol paid $80 an acre for his farm of 100 acres in Jackson county five years ago and has refused $125 an acre several times for it since. He believes it is easily worth $150 an acre because of the rock road. All of which is some different from $100 in Clay county—the same distance from Kansas City.

State Experimental Station.

The passing of a law in the state of North Dakota establishing a good roads experimental station is a movement in the right direction. The experimental roads are not to be great in extent, one running from the capitol building at Bismarck to Fort Lincoln and the other from the state penitentiary to the Missouri river, but they are long enough and in sufficiently close proximity to the capitol to be of object lessons to the members of the next legislature. North Dakota's entrance into the list of states that may be confidently looked for two years hence.

Road Building in Missouri.

Missouri now has 340 miles of macadam roads, 15 per cent of which was added during the past year. The mileage of gravel road was increased during the same season by 300 miles, making a total of 4,000 miles.

A Good Roads Movement.

We've had good roads movement down to Folsom, on the creek. We raised some ready cash for what we couldn't get on ice. An' bein' a particular job, we thought it would be wise to get some men of probity to come an' supervise. An' we further guaranteed 'gainst chances of neglect. We took a set of men an' told 'em to inspect. An' these arrangements didn't seem jes' what they ought to be. Till we'd secured some talent competent to oversee. There arose misunderstandin' 'bout emoluments and rank. But the payroll checks kep' comin' very regular to the bank. Somehow the highway didn't seem to be any better. An' every time we went to town we had to bump the bumps. We found it hard to comprehend what such delay could mean. In work so well inspected, supervised an' overseen. The only manual labor on this job that seemed so slow. Was done with great reluctance by a small boy with a hoe. The situation naturally shocked our civic pride. We called some meetin', an' the proper people testified. We not the overseers to tell exactly what the boys knew. An' heard from the inspectors an' the supervisors too. Then we drew up resolutions an' delivered an address. We vindicated our efforts to uplift an' to progress. We to solved the difficulty, an' our hearts are full of joy. An' discipline maintained. We fired that no 'count boy.

BOOK MADE TOWNS.

Holiday Resorts That Owe Their Popularity to Authors.

The most remarkable example of a book made town is Biskra, the oasis in the Sahara that Robert Hichens idealized under the name of Beni More in his novel "The Garden of Allah."

Biskra, quite unknown in the past, is now, thanks to Mr. Hichens, a fashionable winter resort. It is rather odd that all the world should know that Biskra was meant by Beni More in "The Garden of Allah." There is a Beni More near Biskra, a kind of swamp, with a few clay huts and a palm or two sticking up out of the mud, but Biskra itself is never mentioned in the book.

Hiracombie, the north Devon watering place, owes its renown to Charles Kingsley, who in his novel of "Westward Ho!" praises it.

Two other Devon watering places, Lynton and Lynmouth, are book made. Binkmore's novel of "Lorna Doone" first drew the public to them.

Pierre Loti in "Lecheur d'Alain" described very beautifully the Breton resort of Palmpol. Many persons in consequence have visited Palmpol in the hope of passing the summer there.

Yain hope! Palmpol, with its muddy, smelly tidal river, is not quite an ideal holiday resort.—Exchange.

Forced into Exile.

Wm. Upchurch, of Glen Oak, Okla., was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought, would cure a frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for coughs and colds, it dispels Hoarseness and Sore Throat. Cures Grip, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free, guaranteed by Severs Drug Co.

The Sacrifice.

"A Kentucky couple," said Mrs. Simpson, "got married a few days ago after a courtship which had lasted fifty years."

"I suppose," replied Mr. Simpson, "the poor old man had become too feeble to hold out any longer."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Oh, no! If you can't pay a bill, being cheerful about it only makes the other man madder."—Detroit Free Press.
